Excerpt: .month, when slight diminution of thirst, and diuresis took place, and, at the same time, the slight pain which he had complained of in his head now became so very severe that it was necessary to discontinue the administration of the ergot. In the course of a day or two the pain in his head had considerably abated, but the thirst and urination again increased. The ergot treatment was resumed on the 12th of January in similar doses, and on the 23rd the intense thirst and excessive urination suddenly gave way to the normal condition of things in these respects; but again at this time he complained of the most excruciating pain in his head, which was relieved by withdrawing the ergot and giving a hypodermic injection of morphia. Since then there has been no return of the urgent thirst and diuresis; but the pain...
