Excerpt: . . . belongs to the people, must on no account be dismissed with scorn. I will not subscribe to such principles as long as I live! I confess, however, that this private quarrel does not provide the most favourable opportunity for stigmatising barbarism and its idolaters. But how can the man dare to think of an action for libel, when we have the whole story of his bankruptcy to hold over him Thank L. Daae from me for his valuable assistance, and beg him not to desert me. This matter is one of serious importance to me; for if this dishonest speculation of Jensens really obtains sympathy and support at home, it is my intention, come what may, to sever all ties with Norway, and never set foot on her soil again. I was working in happy tranquillity of mind at my new book. From Sweden, from Denmark, and from Germany, I hear nothing but what gives me pleasure; it is from Norway that everything bad comes upon me. What do the people want Am I not far enough away Something occurs to me. Could not parts of my article be used as extracts from a private letter from me Do whatever you and Thoresen think proper; but prevent the fatal possibility of the reprint of my books seeing the light of day. Once more, thank you for your letter. A cordial greeting to your wife. I intend, if I get out of this despicable affair...
